This color-illustrated guide to the 70 best scuba diving locations around the world describes 300 diving sites in six oceans and seas around the world. The guide opens with introductory material on facts about the ocean, the world of diving, and protecting the aquatic environment. Entries provide descriptions of dive sites and give information on visibility, water temperatures, and marine life. They also offer information on getting there, visa requirements, and currency, and give contact information for key support facilities at each dive site, including dive centers, organizations, recompression chambers, hospitals, and conservation societies. There is also information on nearby activities and places of interest for rest days and non-divers. Most of this supplemental information is contained in margin boxes. Notes on safety, a list of diving organizations, and a glossary are included. This second edition adds 15 new destinations, and contains color photos on every page. This book is great the pictures make you want to dive right in and not wait for the plane. I will put some of these places on my bucket list.

This book has a nice list of diving sites all over the world. For each place you will find a small list with diving centers, hospitals, chambers and some nice hints and suggestions about each place and dive site. It also has a nice set of pictures and maps. I think it's a good book to use if you intend to start planning a dive trip.
